

Lloyds TSB Foundation for Scotland

Lloyds TSB Foundation for Scotland is one of four independent charitable trusts distributing 1% of Lloyds TSB Group's pre-tax profits. The Foundation for Scotland receives 19.46% of this amount.

The Foundation began life in 1985, and the merger between TSB Group and Lloyds Bank in 1995 increased the Foundation's income significantly. The Foundation is now the largest independent Scottish grant-making trust, working to support hundreds of Scotland's charities each year. Aiming to improve quality of life and create equality of opportunity for people in Scotland, especially those who are disadvantaged or marginalised, the Foundation has always supported local community groups and grassroots charities. It is dedicated to being approachable and working with the voluntary sector to ensure the continued relevance of its funding programmes.

The Foundation is governed by a Board of Trustees who meet six times a year to consider applications and grant funds. Their care and professionalism makes a huge difference to communities across Scotland. The work carried out by the Foundation and the level of awards it makes really does mean it is at the heart of funding Scotland's charities.

The Chair's Report

Thursday 9 June 2005 provided a memorable touchstone day for the Trustees and the "Foundation's Foundation" (the term chosen in gratitude and high regard for our Staff). Gathering for our Annual Away Day in the South West of Scotland we visited Ruthwell Parish Church and the Henry Duncan Museum, both of which are memorials to Henry Duncan who as Parish Minister of Ruthwell in Dumfries-shire from 1798 to 1845 founded what was to become known throughout the world as the Trustee Savings Bank movement.

Lloyds TSB Group plc and the four Foundations in Scotland, England and Wales, Northern Ireland and the Channel Islands are the heirs and beneficiaries of Henry Duncan's courage and wisdom. It took great courage on Henry Duncan's part to accept his calling to the poorer Parish of Ruthwell rather than the smarter, richer Parish of Lochmaben or a comfortable University Chair.

Yet it was his wisdom which saw that people taking responsibility for their own lives and saving a princely for most, farthing a week avoided a culture of dependency and allowed a deep inner purpose and confidence to be discovered.

We hope, whether as Trustees or as present members of the Foundation's Foundation, that we continue to show equivalent courage and wisdom within our various grant-giving schemes. From time to time we are also involved in topics of National debate or need or emergency. Collaborative partnerships have emerged from these discussions such as the Partnership Drugs Initiative with the Scottish Executive and our support for research into the quality of life in the ageing population in association with the Royal Society of Edinburgh.

Looking forward to our 21st Anniversary year, the Trustees have decided to pay tribute to the conspicuously successful and regularly admired work of our Chief Executive, Andrew Muirhead. We have been delighted to grant Andrew a 6-month sabbatical period in 2006 to visit a number of our overseas funded projects and to become a visiting Fellow of Social Ventures Australia.

Andrew will be working closely with the Founding CEO of Social Ventures Australia, Michael Traill, who will then return we are delighted to say as the first Lloyds TSB Founder in Scotland. We look forward to the new insights and benefits which this relationship of exchange and forward-looking partnership will bring to the Foundation and to Scotland.

There is an old Gaelic Proverb which says that

"in order to know where you are going, it is sometimes necessary to remember where you have come from."

That memorable touchstone visit to Ruthwell Parish last June encourages us to believe that in our work and responsibilities, thanks to the continuing work and provenance of Lloyds TSB Group plc, we are indeed acting in the courage and wisdom of the spirit of Henry Duncan.

The Chief Executive's Review

In 2005 the Foundation achieved much, but it is in our growing partnership work that we can take most heart for the future. We are increasingly at the centre of cutting edge strategic alliances designed to extract maximum value for the voluntary sector. Our Partnership Drugs Initiative attracts £7 for every £1 we invest in work of vital importance, and one-off initiatives respond to particular challenges and opportunities for the Scottish voluntary sector. We have worked closely with a range of statutory and discretionary funders in groundbreaking initiatives such as:

Evaluation Support Scotland, to create better learning about the impact of the work we all do, and simplify bureaucracy around funding allowing our efforts to be focused on delivering what works.

A new structured programme for young male offenders developed by a consortium of operational charities designed to offer a constructive and pattern breaking impact as an alternative to custodial sentences.

Developing sustainable culturally appropriate psycho-social support for regions of the world impacted by major disasters inspired by tsunami.

Our continuing activities remain vitally important to people throughout Scotland with this year's spending on charitable activities 10% up on 2004. Our committed and professional staff work hard to ensure we are as accessible as we can be, offering the highest levels of customer service.

A few key aspects from these activities in the year are:

Including our Matched Giving awards, staff of the Bank raised over £730,000 for Scotland's charities through fundraising and volunteering.

The Partnership Drugs Initiative now supports 75 individual projects working with some of the toughest realities in the country, and held its first ever annual conference gaining Ministerial attendance.

The standard grant scheme brought invaluable support to almost 450 charities, with almost 90% of funds supporting salaries and running costs in predominantly community based groups.

With the financial support of the Scottish Executive we worked through 21 Scottish charities to bring enormous benefit to communities in the developing world.

In the year we consulted over 500 charities to ensure that our grant-making for the period 2006-08 continues to reflect pressing needs, and reviewed perceptions of the Foundation and our branding. We also spent time planning my 2006 visit to Australia to ensure the learning will be of great benefit to the Foundation and the voluntary sector across Scotland.

We are proud of our achievements, and delighted to be so active in many exciting collaborations, and our ambition to improve and do even more in support of Scotland's first class voluntary sector burns strongly.

What We Fund

Voluntary Action's BefriendER project in East Renfrewshire

The Foundation distributes its funds to recognised charities in Scotland which are focused on improving quality of life and creating equality of opportunity for people in Scotland. This applies particularly to those who are disadvantaged or marginalised. In 2005 we reviewed the criteria used by our Trustees, consulting with over 500 Scottish charities.

For more detail on what we will or won't fund, have a look at our criteria, priorities and principles leaflets. These are on our website, www.itsbfoundationforscotland.org.uk, or you can call us on 0870 902 1201 and we'll send you a copy.

The Standard Grant Scheme

Glasgow City Mission's Child and Family Centre in Govan

We make the majority of our awards through our standard grant scheme, funding a huge variety of organisations to carry out an even wider range of work. Many of the organisations we fund are small grassroots charities working in their own local communities.

Recognised charities can apply to us for revenue and capital costs, and for awards over one to three years. The list of awards we made in 2005 is on pages 22 to 36, and this will give you a good feel for the sort of things we fund. There are six rounds of awards each year.

In 2005 through our standard grant scheme we supported 447 charities with awards totalling £5,739,675.

49% was used to fund salaries.

39% was used to fund running costs.

12% funded capital projects.

55% of applicants were successful.

327 organisations received £2,170,797 in one-off awards, with the average award being £6,639.

There were 120 multi-year awards totalling £3,568,878, with the average award being £29,741.

We also hold funding surgeries across Scotland, giving people the chance to discuss their application before it is submitted. With over 80 opportunities a year to get face to face support with your application, as well as the option of speaking to someone by phone, we do our very best to help. If you'd like to make a surgery appointment or ask for advice or an application pack, call us on 0870 902 1201.

In 2005, one successful group was Aberdeen International Centre. They received £7,237 to support the salary costs of an Ethnic Minority Disability Support Worker. Dr. Mala Sathanathan, Director, said: "This post will help disabled and needy members of the ethnic minority community in Aberdeen be more fully involved in day to day activities such as attending medical appointments and doing their own shopping. Without support, many people become isolated and find it very difficult to feel part of their local community. People also need help to make sure they understand the benefits they are entitled to, and know how to access these. We're looking forward to the difference this post will make to the services we can provide in Aberdeen, and the benefits it will bring to the individuals we work with."

Organisational Review Awards

An Indepen-dance performance

As well as providing funding for people and projects, we're also interested in helping charities themselves develop. Our organisational review awards give your organisation dedicated time with a consultant who can help you understand what is working and any changes you may want to consider about the way you operate.

Covering areas such as governance, financial management, resource and financial planning, information technology, communications, strategic development and staff development, these awards are of use to charities of any size.

57 organisations were awarded £52,946.

The average award was £929.

82% of applicants were successful.

Glasgow-based Indepen-dance received an organisational review award in April 2005. Since 1996 Indepen-dance has offered creative movement classes to adults with disabilities. Over 80 adults a week attend classes and there are links to other charities in the area. Each year several major production performances are staged with participants working with professional dancers. The amazing opportunities this provides have led to an opening performance at the Special Olympics as well as performances with Royal Scottish Academy of Music and Drama.

Their organisational review award paid for two days with a consultant. Karen Anderson, artistic director, said: "We realised from our organisational review that making changes to the way we operated would let us offer services to an even wider group of people. The two days we spent with a consultant gave us time to review our governance and fundraising strategy, and subsequent work we've carried out, including development of a business plan, has meant we're in a much stronger position than we were a year ago."

Capacity Building Grants

Once you have carried out an organisational review, you can get more help to address any improvement areas. A capacity building grant will pay for more days with a consultant who will support you to make changes. The aim is to help your organisation and the people who work in it be as effective as they can be.

£185,026 was awarded to 41 organisations in 2005.

The average award was £4,513.

95% of applicants were successful.

"This grant has helped us get our planning into gear as in the past other things always seemed to be more of a priority."

East Lothian Special Needs Playschemes received a capacity building grant following their organisational review. They provide a resource for children and young people aged 5 -16 years of age with a wide range of special needs and disabilities, with the main part of their work being playschemes during school holidays. Co-ordinator Kirsten Baird said: "This grant has helped us get our planning into gear as in the past other things always seemed to be more of a priority. This has taught us how to make planning a useful and valuable process and has produced a plan which should really help us with our fundraising as well as management of the organisation. Because the consultant has worked with us rather than writing the plan for us, our current plan is much better than previous ones and we'll also be able to write more effective plans for ourselves in the future."

In 2005 the Foundation reviewed how our organisational review awards and capacity building grants were delivered, and have made changes such as bringing these two programmes together and having a dedicated member of staff to run this. We've also opened up these awards to Scottish based registered charities who are managing work overseas. For more information about capacity building please call us on 0870 902 1201.

Overseas Grants

"Our work training more doctors will really increase the access people have to specialist treatment."

Emelia, who received plastic surgery treatment in Ghana

The Foundation awards money to Scottish based charities working overseas. This programme has been running since 2003, and in 2005 we approved funding for the next three years. We are the largest independent funder of Scottish charities working overseas.

21 organisations were awarded a total of £660,898 in 2005, with the average award being £31,471. 60% of the groups who applied were awarded funding, and over two-thirds of the awards were used for running costs.

If your organisation is a recognised charity and would be interested in receiving an award for work in one or more of the following areas, call us on 0870 902 1201 to find out more:

Projects which build the capacity of organisations overseas, and develop their ability to advocate.

Costs associated with running overseas volunteering programmes which focus on the development and transfer of skills.

Support for the initiation or continuation of sustainable indigenous projects overseas.

Costs associated with bringing people to Scotland for training, development and study leading to sustainable development.

We make one round of overseas awards each year. In 2006 the deadline for submissions was 18th April and decisions on who will receive funding will be made in August 2006.

The International Reconstructive Plastic Surgery (GHANA) Project received £29,400 over three years towards the cost of training two Doctors in specialist plastic surgery techniques in the UK and return transport to Ghana. In 2005 they brought the first of these doctors to Scotland to train at Canniesburn Plastic Surgery Unit in the Glasgow Royal Infirmary.

Allan Burns, project manager, said: "There are currently only five plastic surgeons in Ghana for 20 million people - this is only a fortieth of the number per head of population that we have in the UK. So, our work training more doctors will really increase the access people have to specialist treatment. Many of the people who will benefit from this award are children who need plastic surgery to help them recover from tropical diseases such as the Buruli ulcer, which is dreadfully painful and deforming and for which there is still no cure."

The Foundation also made awards to two organisations working to help survivors of the 2004 tsunami. £97,000 will be used by the Institute for International Health and Development at Queen Margaret University College to support the salary of a Psycho-social Professional Development Officer for two years, allowing work to be delivered in Sri Lanka and Indonesia. £40,000 will be used by Scotland's Buddhist Vihara to build and equip a centre which will enable psycho-social counselling work to support people in south west Sri Lanka.

The Royal Society of Edinburgh receive their latest award from Norman Drummond (far left). Ewan Brown, Chairman of Lloyds TSB Scotland (far right) attended the event

Research Awards

The Foundation funds research, and made two awards in 2005. New Philanthropy Capital was awarded £60,000 towards the cost of five social research projects, and The Royal Society of Edinburgh was awarded £900,000 over three years to fund continuing research into the ageing population.

Sir Michael Atiyah, President of The Royal Society of Edinburgh, said: "The research work being carried out with this money is likely to have a very real impact on the quality of lives of our ageing population."

It will enable more of Scotland's brightest researchers to explore a wide range of issues affecting older people, with the expertise of the Society being used as effectively as possible in providing public service in Scotland. By working in partnership with Lloyds TSB Foundation for Scotland, we are seeking to help address problems and find solutions to issues of concern for Scotland's ageing population."

"The research work being carried out with this money is likely to have a very real impact on the quality of lives of our ageing population."

Family Service Unit Scotland

Partnership Drugs Initiative

Family Service Unit Scotland

The Partnership Drugs Initiative (PDI) promotes voluntary sector work with vulnerable children and young people affected by substance misuse. It has been running since 2000 and is funded by the Foundation, the Scottish Executive and Atlantic Philanthropies.

Groups targeted are:

Children and young people in families in which parents misuse drugs or alcohol.

Pre-teen children who are at higher risk of developing problems with substance misuse.

Young people who are developing or who have established problems with substance misuse.

Working with voluntary and statutory groups, the projects we fund gain strength from the partnership approach used. We involve a group of young people to assess potential projects, making sure they are relevant to the children and young people who will be using them. A steering group who have a wide range of expertise in this area gives us confidence that all aspects of projects have been considered.

Drug and Alcohol Action Teams are a key group in co-ordinating work locally, and charities develop two-stage applications with them. There are two rounds of PDI funding each year, and all the projects we fund must identify match funding for at least 50% of the project costs from another funding route.

In November we held a one day PDI conference in Glasgow. This successful event was attended by Hugh Henry, Deputy Minister for Justice. It brought together a range of service planners and providers, and included sessions run by young people who are involved with the programmes we fund.

In 2005 we also spent time evaluating the PDI model of funding to find out what works and what doesn't. The initial findings were extremely positive, and we're looking forward to building on these in 2006.

During 2005 we made 36 awards totalling £2,659,933 to 28 organisations. This is over double the total of awards made in 2004.

There was an applicant success rate of 87.8%.

The average award was £73,887.

Over 77% of the money went to fund running costs, and almost 16% to fund salaries, with the remaining 6.5% funding capital projects.

West Lothian Youth Action run a workshop at the Partnership Drugs Initiative conference

Family Service Unit Scotland was awarded two PDI multi-year awards in 2005 totalling £396,864. This will continue to fund two family support workers in Edinburgh and fund four new family support workers in South Lanarkshire for three years. These workers will help parents establish routines and boundaries as well as offering one-2-one support to enable the children to express their concerns and feelings. Their work with schools also helps enable children to address issues around drugs and alcohol.

Liz Dahl, Director of Family Service Unit Scotland, said: "These awards are enabling us to work in new neighbourhoods with disadvantaged children and families. This means we can make a positive difference to people in areas we've previously not been able to support. It's great to be able to expand our service, and knowing we've got money to fund posts for three years also gives us confidence we can provide secure employment." Family Service Unit Scotland have also received awards through our standard grant and capacity building programmes.

Staff Matched Giving Scheme

A Giant Productions Limited performance

All staff employed by Lloyds TSB Scotland plc, Cheltenham & Gloucester, Scottish Widows, Black Horse and other Lloyds TSB Group Subsidiaries can apply for up to £400 a year to match their work for charities. This may be for either fundraising activities or voluntary time.

In 2005 664 claims totalling £211,728 were supported, with the average claim being £319. Including this money, the voluntary sector benefited from £730,718 through this scheme, and staff gave 6152 hours of their time to support the voluntary sector.

You can find out more about the staff matched giving scheme at www.lloydstsbfoundations.org.uk/matchedgiving.

As well as raising money, the staff clearly enjoy coming up with imaginative ways of raising money. In 2005 some of the activities were:

Camel racing, walking the West Highland Way, Halloween dance, Santa sledge, 22 mile swim, dragon boat race, pink party, Burns night, Christmas pantomime, teddybear race, concerts, ceilidh, hunt the fugitive, pub quiz, line dance, monster bike and hike, karaoke, abseil and a hypnosis night, to name but a few!

Alison Thomson of Lloyds TSB Scotland claimed £100 for the Marykirk Mother and Toddler Group to match money she raised by taking part in a teddy-bear toddle with her daughter. She also claimed £300 for the 1st Fettercairn Guide Association for 60 hours of the voluntary work she did with them. Alison said: "The money I've been able to claim to match the fundraising and volunteering I've done makes a really big difference to the charities. The £300 the Fettercairn Guides received went towards letting four of the guides attend a camp with guides from all over the world, which was a fantastic experience for them. The Marykirk Mother and Toddler Group were able to buy seats for the kids who go to the group so they could all eat together."

A full list of the charities who have benefited through this scheme are given on pages 42 to 45.

The Bank's Commitment to its Communities

Supporting the Children's Programme at the Edinburgh International Book Festival

Through the Foundation and in many other ways, Lloyds TSB Scotland demonstrates its commitment to society. It does so out of the belief that it's wise to support the economic well-being and social development of the communities from which it draws its people and its business.

This commitment is a strong part of the Bank's heritage. In the 1800s the Reverend Henry Duncan of Ruthwell, Dumfriesshire, set up the very first Trustee Savings Bank to help his poorest parishioners save for times of hardship.

Today, the Bank still believes in the importance of providing financial services tailored to the needs of those who lack either the knowledge or opportunity to gain access to them in the usual way. The core of Lloyds TSB Scotland's financial inclusion policy lies in initiatives such as the provision of basic bank accounts and support for community credit unions.

The Bank also backs organisations such as Social Investment Scotland, which provides loan finance for social economy organisations, and the Bridges Community Development Venture Capital Fund, which supports business growth in socially-deprived areas. In partnership with Lauder College, the Bank provides advice and banking facilities to businesses starting up in Fife which might not otherwise have had access to such services.

Lloyds TSB Scotland's community programme also focuses on three other areas as well as community regeneration – education, the arts and charitable giving. Its work includes support for the Hills Trust in Govan, a learning academy that provides IT skills to the local community of traditionally blue-collar workers.

In 2005, the Bank's wide-ranging sponsorship programme included backing the Children's Programme at the Edinburgh International Book Festival, where workshops, storytelling sessions and talks by authors encourage enjoyment and education through reading.

Lloyds TSB Scotland also continued to strengthen its partnership with the National Galleries of Scotland. By supporting the Icons of the 20th Century exhibitions, the Bank boosted the National Galleries' education programme which offers workshops for schools and community groups.

As well as helping children become involved in the arts, the Bank also believes in the importance of encouraging and enabling youngsters to take part in sports. With this in mind, Lloyds TSB Scotland's award-winning partnership with Cricket Scotland includes substantial grass-roots development activity such as free match tickets for children, as well as cricket academies and summer schools across the country.

Lloyds TSB Scotland continued to sponsor The Scottish Rugby Youth League Cup, which saw more than 80 teams competing around Scotland. The Bank is also a founder member of the Thistle Trust, which promotes rugby in schools and clubs throughout Scotland.

Those who work for Lloyds TSB Scotland and other parts of the Lloyds TSB Group in Scotland such as Scottish Widows and Black Horse Finance share this commitment to supporting their local communities by giving both their time and their money to a whole variety of other organisations, and much of their fundraising activity is match-funded by the Foundation.

Susan Rice and staff from Marie Curie Cancer Care

Black Horse Finance continued to sponsor the Radio Forth Awards in 2005, raising money for their Help a Child Appeal. The Black Horse Community challenge also saw staff transforming the playground of Mid Calder Primary School alongside Radio Forth listeners. The "Time to Care" programme supported local community schemes, and staff were given time off to work on worthwhile local projects such as transforming an outbuilding at Pilton Youth Centre into an up-to-date cyber cafe for use by young people in the area.

These are just some of the many ways that the Bank supports its communities in Scotland. The Bank's belief in the importance of this commitment is probably best summed up by Susan Rice, the Bank's chief executive who, in 2005, was appointed HRH Ambassador for CSR in Scotland:

"As one of Scotland's largest employers, Lloyds TSB Scotland has an important role to play in strengthening the economic and social base of the country. By adopting socially responsible practices, and actively engaging with all facets of society, we create economic benefit for ourselves, our people and the communities where we do business."

Celebrating 100 years in Hamilton with local customers and children

Looking Forward to 2006

Norman Drummond presenting at the Foundation's 2005 Annual Forum.

We'll be celebrating our 21st birthday by making 15 awards of £21,000 to groups across Scotland. Themed round inclusive and integrated communities, these awards are aimed at making sure our 21st birthday has a positive and lasting impact on local communities. To finish the celebrations we'll be hosting a dinner at Stirling Castle along with Lloyds TSB Scotland.

Andrew Muirhead will be spending time in Australia on a visiting fellowship. He's aiming to look at the voluntary sector there and to see what we can learn from models or approaches used on the other side of the world. Andrew is also going to be visiting some of the overseas projects we fund to see first hand the difference Scotland's charities are making to lives across the world.

We're continuing our overseas grants, having seen the value added by our first three years of funding in this area.

Having listened to your feedback we're looking forward to delivering our revised capacity building grants, and to receiving applications for these from Scottish based registered charities who manage work overseas.
